

Five Years Ago

We believed that the keeping qualities of beer sealed with corks was superior to that sealed with crown caps. To-day we positively know that retains its brilliancy, effervescence and flavor better when sealed with crown caps. We know this because we have tested thousands of bottles both ways, and these tests compel us to render a verdict in favor of crown caps. Besides, the crowns are infinitely more convenient to both the consumer and the trade. Budweiser is always the same in quality no matter whether sealed with corks or crowns and is bottled only at our home plant in St. Louis.

The State of Missouri, at the relation and to the use of J. N. Lewis, collector of the revenue of Iron county, Missouri, against:
William T. Travis, W. A. Knotts, executor and trustee.

Now at this day comes the plaintiff, J. N. It is, therefore, ordered by the judge of this court that publication be made notifying said defendants that an action has been commenced against them in the circuit court of said county, the object and general nature of which is to enforce the lien of the state of Missouri, on the following real estate, belonging to the said defendants, for back taxes for the year 1907, to wit:

Pilot Knob Mines Will Reopen.

(From the St. Louis Republic.)
Pilot Knob, which overshadows the Arcadian Valley and holds within its silent walls tons upon tons of iron ore, again will echo with the hammer and blast of the miner.

The Paxico Iron Company has gotten from the Big Muddy Coal and Iron Company a mining lease of the mineral and surface rights at Pilot Knob, and is preparing as rapidly as possible to resume mining operations there.

Pr. J. Crawford, president of the Paxico company, and Mining Engineer William Chauvenet, departed yesterday afternoon for the scene of future activities to begin a comprehensive survey of engineering problems attendant to the best and most rapid development of the company's interests. They will be gone a week.

The fact that the Big Muddy Coal and Iron Company has held this vast acreage of mineral intact, and absolutely idle since 1893, and even now refuse to part with an acre of it, convinces Mr. Crawford that the company is well aware of the wealth of mineral hidden within the hills. The Big Muddy Company has definite knowledge, according to Mr. Crawford, of an immense body of surface, or boulder ore, some 200 feet in depth in the northeast side of the Knob. There is also an immense tonnage of silicons on top of the Knob, and in the old underground workings there is still a considerable amount in many different places, also several hundred thousand tons in the old dumps which are acres in extent.

The Big Muddy Company also located down in the Arcadian Valley, by use of a diamond drill, a vast body of ore under 50 per cent. iron and high in phosphorus and sulphur, which in those days they did not consider worth opening. It followed only the crest of a vertical vein of rich magnetic ore on Shepherd Mountain. On Cedar Hill is another rich body of ore, from which but 25,000 tons were taken. Russell Mountain, Tiptop and Shut-In Cave contain more or less rich ore. The territory abounds with undeveloped and half-worked veins of great richness. Mr. Crawford is enthusiastic over the prospects disclosed.

"Fundamentally, conditions then and now cannot be compared," said Mr. Crawford at the Southern Hotel yesterday shortly before his departure for Pilot Knob. "There was a poor demand for any kind of pig iron during previous activities in the Arcadian Valley, and it was often a drug on the market, its value fluctuating like the weather. The industry was in many respects crude.

"Missouri has always produced more or less charcoal iron, but because of modern methods the demand for it has consistently declined. Chemistry has reduced the blast furnace business to an exact science. Silicons, sulphur and phosphorus carbons are now determined with wonderful accuracy, and as a result, we have progress from an age of iron to an age of steel. In fact, there is much interesting history that has more to do with the undeveloped steel of Missouri's iron resources than the want of workable deposits of iron.

"It is a case of the Brawny Scot' of Pittsburgh putting it over on the 'Show Me' men of Missouri and in those days it made the Missourians so sick they never even tried to come back." Then a ton of steel rails was worth no more than a ton of basic iron today—about $18 per ton. Pilot Knob ore was worth from 90 cents to $1.25 per ton in cars.

"The specular ores of Pilot Knob and Iron Mountain are very dense, hard and refractory, requiring a maximum amount of coke, unless a mixture of porous brown or red ore can be had in the furnace. I am told there was always a lack of these ores in Missouri in those days, so the furnace men had to look elsewhere for their coke, which was had at a very high price—that tells a large part of the story of abandonment.

"The Eastern men were always good buyers of rich Bessemer ore from Pilot Knob and Iron Mountain, which they mixed with the low grade ores of Pennsylvania and with cheap coke they controlled and made good steel cheap and incidentally the pace was so swift, competition so keen that it made the Missouri operators quit the business, and they lost millions of dollars by it. They did not look around for coking coal and other necessary mineral used in the production of iron, so to abandon the business without defeat they said the ore had given out.

"The Iron Mountain Company, then the most famous in the world, sold its dumps for $50,000, realizing $80,000 for 16,000 acres of land, including Iron Mountain, and the broker who sold it, it is said, realized $40,000 on it. The people who bought the dumps did not half finish them in six years. And so the man who paid $100,000 for 16,000-acre stock farm looked in at the iron and stopped working on the property, and in the last four or five years has sold $100,000 worth of ore, and this year has finally got the mud out of the old slopes and is again producing ore. It was an inspiration to me in my negotiations for Pilot Knob.

"I will venture the assertion that the ore wealth of old Iron Mountain to-day can be estimated as worth $500,000, say nothing of being the finest stock farm in Missouri with about 4000 acres under plow, and I think it is fairly typical of the business sagacity, capacity and energy that has managed the rise and fall of the iron industry in Missouri."

WHEN ASTOR SOLD REALTY

Only Sale Ever Recorded in John Jacob's Life Was to His Son, and the Consideration One Dollar.

"One of the most stringent real estate rules of the Astor family is never sell; and only one sale is recorded in the entire life of old John Jacob Astor," said Niles F. Watkins, a real estate broker of New York, to the Washington Herald. "In 1830 Astor tore down his house in Broadway, cleared the whole block from Vesey to Barclay street, and built the huge gray Quincy granite hotel which held forth until not many years ago as the Astor house, being one of the first notable landmarks in New York, and also one of the best paying pieces of property.

"A few days after it was finished the old gentleman and his eldest son William were walking through City Hall park, and stopped a moment to admire the building—the finest hotel in America at that time.

"Pop, that's a mighty fine building," said William, I wish to gracious it was mine."

"So," answered the father. "Well, Billy, give me one dollar and you can have it."

"Out came the dollar—a big silver dollar, that is cherished by the family to this day as the dollar of our daddies—and within an hour the deed of the property was made out and recorded. This was old Mr. Astor's sale of real estate in his life."

Ancient Coins Discovered.

Building operations in the Rue d'Arment in Brussels have led to the discovery of a metal case containing about 130,000 ancient coins. Of these 80,000 are English, Irish and Scotch, and the remainder were minted in Belgium in the time of Henry III. of Brabant.

It is supposed that the coins belonged to a knight of Brussels, who died them about 1264, and that he was killed in fighting and carried with him to the grave his secret, which was to remain hidden for nearly seven centuries.
